Directed by Nigel Dick

A washed-up Hollywood star, flown to England to play the title role in King Lear finds he has signed on with the "Stratford Players" in a small village. With a deteriorating career, and problems with his daughter, the American has no time for manners, displays an appalling lack of class, and considers himself too big for this lowly setting. The local villagers are a motley crew but are delighted to have such an - albeit unsuccessful - star playing with them. The transition to humble actor, happy to play with the British actors takes some time, but eventually he realises that he is no better, in terms of talent and intelligence, than his amateur colleagues.

This terrific comedy packed with killer comic dialogue has a great story, with plenty of twists and turns.

The 'FULL HOUSE BAR' opens one hour before the show
